

PRESS RELEASE

SurfactGreen commits to a 10 million euros expansion project.

An operation financed by Bpifrance, Historical Shareholders, and the French Government as part of the France 2030 program operated by ADEME.

SurfactGreen, a French start-up based in Rennes, develops, formulates, and commercializes eco-responsible ingredients, offering an ecological alternative to petroleum-based cationic surfactants, without compromising on performance.

SurfactGreen has partnered with more than 100 customers in France and worldwide and has distribution contracts in more than 26 countries.

With its recent success in cosmetics, illustrated by a cumulative turnover of more than 2.5 million euros, SurfactGreen is accelerating its marketing and industrial development with an investment of 10 million euros.

This investment will allow :

- The construction of a pilot demonstrator on an industrial scale in partnership with Orrion Chemicals based in Orléans.
- To accelerate the growth of CosmeGreen products.
- To finalize the marketing of products for the construction, oil extraction and detergent industries.

This funding is being supported by Bpifrance, the company's Historical Shareholders, and by the French government as part of the France 2030 program operated by ADEME.

"We are perfectly in line with current societal and industrial ambitions: a modern, responsible and green chemistry produced in France. This plan will strengthen our offers to our current and future customers and accelerate the marketing development of SurfactGreen" according to Pierre-Yves Divet and Xavier Roussel, president and CEO.
